Boston, Sept. 25, 1852.

Dear Johnson:

I shall look for you next Wednesday or Thursday, and be ready to go with you on Friday to Vermont. The weather has been so uniformly and remarkably fine for a month past, that I am very much afraid we shall have a reverse of it during our tour. Nevertheless, we will run the risk, "weather or no."

I should like to get back to Boston as soon, at least, as Saturday, Oct. 7th.

Should the weather prove fine, I anticipate a great amount of enjoyment in the course of our tour. Vermont is full of beauty and grandeur.

Theodore is kind and noble in his offer with regard to the Standard.

Affectionately yours,

W. L. G.
